Responding To Change Through New Approaches

1st CIRCULAR

The COMNAP Symposium is based on a forum where people involved in scientific and operational research in Antarctica can share information, experience and knowledge for the benefit of as many National Antarctic Programs as possible.

It is not intended that the Symposium be a forum for commercial exchange, but rather a focus for the sharing of techniques, ideas and experience which can be applied directly and can benefit as many National Antarctic Programs as possible.

Responding To Change Through New Approaches

This Symposium will be a forum and place where provide information useful to member National Antarctic Programs as possible - it should ideally be applicable directly to their activities.

Consistent with this, the papers and posters presented at the Symposium are made available via the Symposium web site and authors are asked to inform their own member National Antarctic Programs to the extent the information contained in their paper or poster is relevant to the activities of their National Antarctic Program activities.
